11 Dies as United Airliner Plunges Into 'Frisco Bay

Big Ship Found Floating Tail Up—Hope Abandoned for All Aboard

HAD PASSED FIELD

Big Transport Bound From Los Angeles Completes Voyage Tragically

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—(AP)—Its 11 occupants given up for dead, a wrecked United Airlines plane was found early Wednesday under water except for its tail in South San Francisco Bay where it plunged late Tuesday night after passing up the landing field.

"There is no possibility that anyone on board is alive," said B. M. Doolin, San Francisco airport manager, after returning from inspecting the wreckage.

Millionaire Aboard

Several prominent Westerners, including a millionaire, were on board. R. E. Neghbin, an eye witness, said the plane appeared to plunge into the water about a quarter of a mile offshore.

"She came in from the south," he said, "and then circled east and started back south. The plane had no landing lights turned on."

"I saw her get lower and lower and says to another fellow 'she's going to hit.' There was a big 'wham' when she struck and disappeared. We got in boats but couldn't find any sight of her."

10 Feet of Water

The water where the plane struck is about 10 feet deep, and the sides of the area said.

Transports from Los Angeles land first at Mills field to discharge passengers bound for San Francisco, then fly to the Oakland airport to let off East Bay passengers. Oakland is the terminus for transcontinental airlines.

19th Anniversary for Cox Drug Co.

Anniversary Sale to Be Held Here Thursday, Friday, Saturday

The John P. Cox Drug company of Hope this week is celebrating its 19th anniversary with special sales Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Numerous articles have been marked down for this event.

The drug firm was established in February, 1918, when John P. Cox and Dr. Don Smith took over interests of Battle & Crescenzo drug firm at 115 South Elm street.

The partnership of Cox & Smith was dissolved five years later when Dr. Smith sold his interest to R. L. Brouch. The present firm moved from its old location on Elm to Second and Elm streets in January two years ago. The stock was increased approximately 40 per cent at that time and new and modern fixtures were installed.

Miss Eula Jones, present employee, has been with the Cox concern 18 years.

In recent years the drug firm obtained the franchise for Walgreen products, which enables the local store to carry the latest in drug sundries. The Walgreen company is the largest operator of retail drugstores in the United States, having 1,800 stores scattered throughout the 48 states.

Paul Bailey Sent to State Hospital

65-Year-Old Carpenter Found Abnormal by Examining Doctors

Paul Bailey, 65-year-old Washington carpenter, who pleaded guilty in municipal court here Monday to improper advances toward a 9-year-old girl, was sent to the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases Wednesday.

Deputy Sheriff Reginald Bearden and Policeman Hugh Bearden left with Bailey for Little Rock Wednesday morning.

Bailey was examined by two physicians at Hope Tuesday afternoon. Their diagnosis showed that Bailey was abnormal. He was ordered to the hospital for further observation.

O'Neal Withdraws Bill Asking Reimbursement From the State

Editor The Star: That I may relieve an innocent man of unjust and unfair criticism through your paper I am today instructing my lawyer, Mr. Chas. Harley, to withdraw from Mr. Vesey the bill intended to reimburse me for money paid out for the accident at Denmark, Ark.

Mr. Vesey knew absolutely nothing about this accident or bill from me until about ten days ago, and would not then, except that a firm of Little Rock lawyers wanted an exorbitant fee from Mr. Harley to handle the matter. They came into the picture by reason of Mr. Harley being sick.

The Star has shown itself to be so very unfair that I think you are just about hopeless.

Very truly yours,
N. P. O'NEAL.

Dear Mr. Harley: Kindly recall from Mr. Vesey the bill you gave him to reimburse me for money paid out on account of the accident at Denmark, Ark., August 23rd, 1935.

Our local paper is very unjustly criticizing Mr. Vesey and I am withdrawing the bill for that reason.

Very truly yours,

Flood Crest Gone, Pressure Remains

Impounded Waters Create Lasting Threat in Mississippi Valley

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—The Mississippi river's muddy flood waters moved slowly toward the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday but apprehension stalked the trail lest their pent-up force crack the seemingly impregnable defense.

The river fell slowly in the upper reaches and the impounded waters created a lasting threat of danger in the floating-out process.

Further down the course the stages crept higher and forced additional residents from their homes.

The stage at Memphis has remained constant for the past 24 hours and may remain there for the next few days.

Floating Cannery Stirs California

But High-Speed Method Avoids Hauling Fish to the Shore

By SAM JACKSON
AP Feature Service Writer
SAN FRANCISCO.—It's all right for canneries to send boats out to catch fish, but when the canneries themselves move right out to sea—is that fair to the fish?

This question is before California in an initiative petition designed to limit and possibly abolish an infant industry consisting of seven floating reduction plants that have been thriving on the immense shoals of sardines off this coast.

"Depletion" of the fisheries is the charge brought by the backers of the petition against this new high-speed method of handling fish.

"There is no depletion," replies the Pacific Coast Fisheries institute, representing the floating factories. "This campaign is financed by the shore reduction plants, just to protect their old time monopoly."

The sardine "merchant marine," containing seven mother ships and 120 purse seiners representing an investment of $5,000,000, dates back to experiments in 1926. Stanley Hiller, a waste-products engineer, got the idea then of canning and processing fish at sea thus avoiding the costly haul to shore plants.

His floating plant, the Lake Miraflores, got into steady operation in 1930. It was successful and sea-going factories began to multiply.

Profit Lies in Fish Oil
Operations are conducted by the mother ship with fish continually fed by a fleet of seiners. The fish, much larger than true sardines, are known in the northwest as pilchards. But here they are called California sardines. More than 100 tons often are brought up with the single casting of a net.

Out of each ton received 13½ cases are packed as human food as required by law. The remainder is processed into oil and fish meal. The latter is the real pay crop of the sardine shoals and it is receiving increasing favor for fattening cattle and poultry and for fertilizing the soil.

It is the claim of the operators that

Fate of Madrid Is Still in Doubt

Telephone Lines Wiped Out Between Capital and Valencia Port

Censored reports, limping over crippled communications lines from Madrid, described Wednesday a new crisis in the three-month siege of Spain's capital.

With telephone lines cut by the Fascist assault on the vital road from Madrid to Valencia, meagre reports from Madrid by cable included declarations that the government will be able to hold Madrid indefinitely, come what may in the present fighting.

Coupled with these declarations were contradictory newspaper reports that "Madrid is in danger."

Turned Brown By Brown Turner

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Every time a State Bar Association holds an examination so many young fellows are there it looks like relief headquarters during the time we had a depression, but because the President wants to thin out the stand of lawyers and make a few judges out of the seasoned ones, most Republicans and a few Democrats, a sprinkling of Liberty Leaguers (if any left) get the jitters and say Mr. Roosevelt wants to be a dictator. But that's what this country needs to hold the men into line since their wives have become lax in home work and started voting and running for office.

Saving Wagner's Labor Act Is Key to the Situation

White House Gesture Is Timed for Crisis of Automobile Strike

AMENDMENT "OUT"

Roosevelt Drops Amendment Plan on Hearing of "Anti" Slush Fund

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Here are the chief angles of the inside story behind Roosevelt's sudden recommendations for revamping the supreme court, the rest of the federal judiciary, and certain phases of judicial procedure insofar as they can be revealed at this time:

1—The presidential message was rushed to Congress at a critical moment in the General Motors strike, and, whether intentional or not, it was so carefully timed as to be an assurance to labor and to the economic royalists "that the New Deal did not intend to permit its guarantees of industrial democracy to be torn to pieces by the supreme court."

2—The president himself had gradually evolved this scheme, and finally went the whole hog for it after reports had reached Washington that his Wall Street opposition was raising a war chest to use in state legislatures against ratification of any constitutional amendment which would curb any powers now asserted by the court. The alternative which he finally decided to drop was a constitutional amendment proposal which would have given Congress a final veto over the supreme court on questions of constitutionality.

3—Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, barring extremely unlikely accident, will be the next chief justice—probably before the end of the year.

4—According to secret calculations high in the New Deal, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes,

Outburst in House
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The first burst of Democratic opposition on the house floor to President Roosevelt's court reform program, Representative Lammuck, Ohio Democrat, suggested Wednesday that it might lead to "a Hitler, Mussolini or Stalin government."

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt urged the congress Wednesday to re-adjusting the agricultural economy of the prairie states, combating drought and dust storms.

In transmitting report from his Great Plains Drought Committee "for the information" of the congress, the president suggested a federal-state-private alliance in "a new economy" based on conservation and effective utilization of water resources.

Justice Willis Van Devanter and Justice Louis D. Brandeis will promptly resign if Congress votes to permit Roosevelt to appoint an extra federal judge for every sitting federal judge over 70 years old. It is believed that Justices Sutherland and Butler would soon feel compelled to follow them.

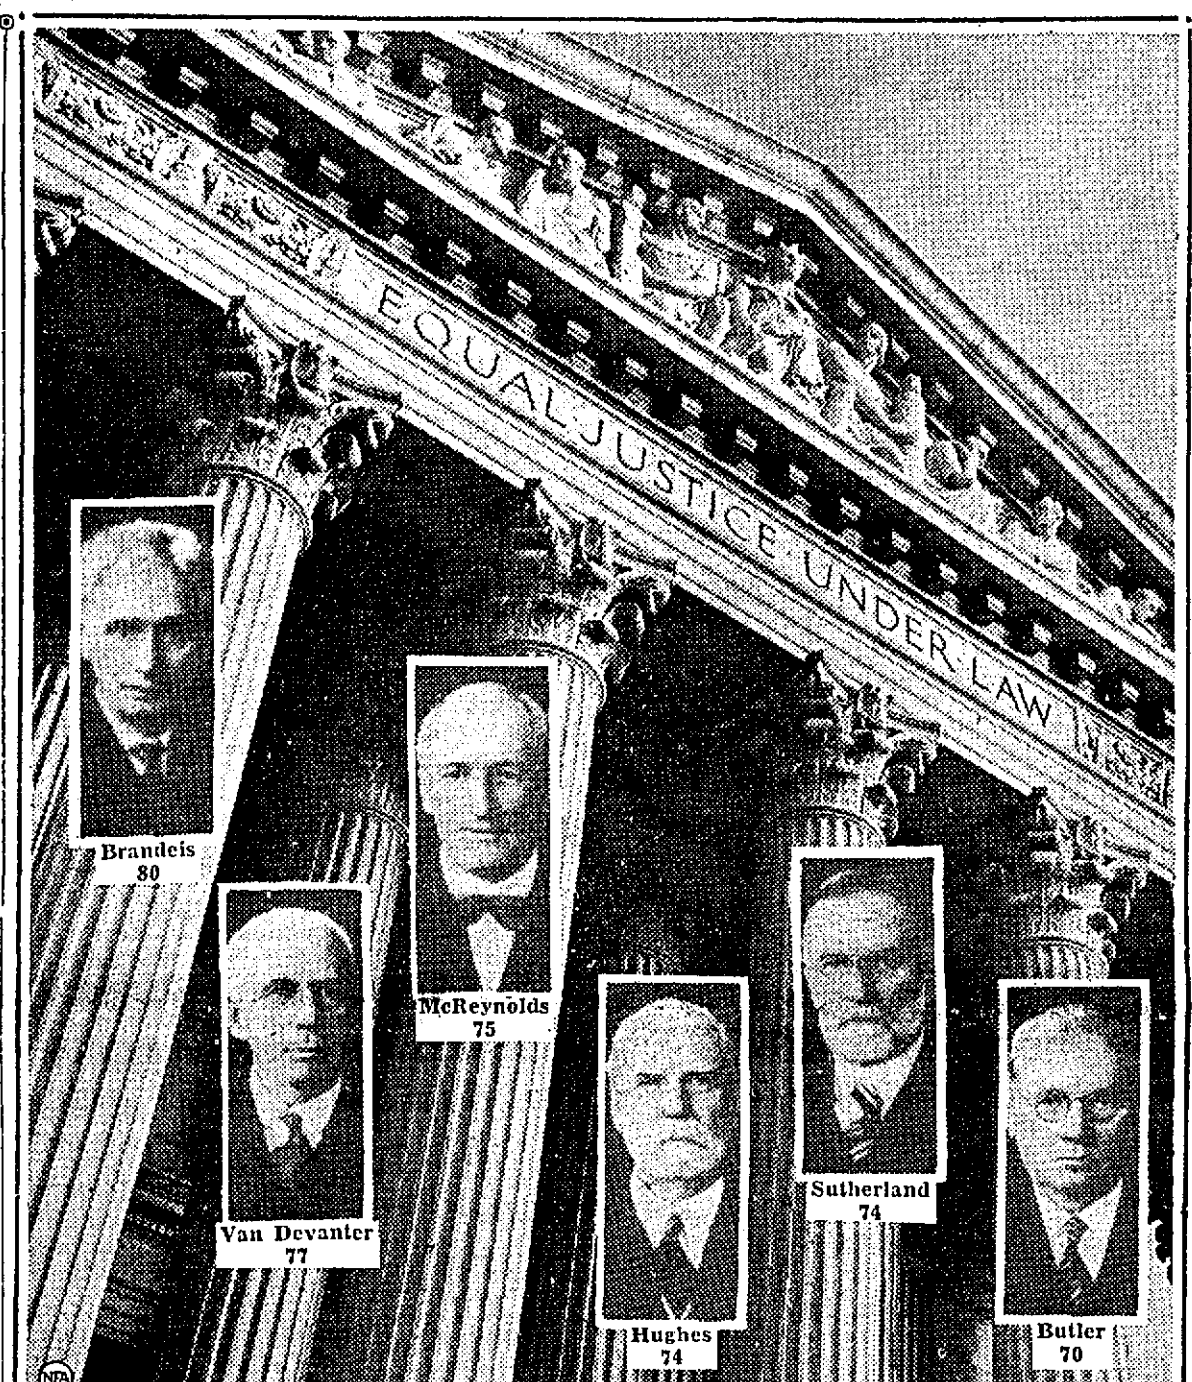

New Dealers think Justice McReynolds, bitterest and most implacable foe of progressive legislation, would stick to the bitter end.

Thus, the only liberal resignation would be that of Justice Brandeis, the oldest member, at 80 years. The five conservative justices eligible for retirement have refused to quit.

5—Administration leaders feel tremendously reinforced from a strategic standpoint by the fact that McReynolds himself, as attorney general, urged appointment of an additional federal judge to serve with each one who refused to retire at 70, that the last Chief Justice Taft urged automatic retirement at 70, and that Hughes has written in favor of retirement at 75—an age he will reach in April.

6—Chief danger to the administration proposal will be found in the Senate, where many supreme court ambitions bloom. The prospect of six possible jobs from which the occupant, after a few years' service could retire for life on $20,000 a year is of course,

TOP—Unless they retire voluntarily, six men whose long interpretation of the law of the land has identified them as "pillars of the supreme court" may find six new justices helping them carry the load. Sweeping judicial reforms proposed by President Roosevelt provide that when a federal judge fails to retire at the age of 70, the president may name an additional judge, provided the total for the supreme court does not exceed 15. This brought the deadlock between the court and the administration to a clear focus, since of the six justices who would be affected, only Brandeis has consistently upheld New Deal legislation.

BOTTOM—Among those mentioned as possible appointees to the supreme court in the event President Roosevelt's court enlargement program becomes law, are left to right, top row Donald Richberg, former NRA administrator; Judge Florence E. Allen of the sixth circuit court of appeals; Felix Frankfurter, presidential adviser. Lower row, left to right: Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Senator Robert F. Wagner, Solicitor General Stanley F. Reed.

Engrossing Clerk Makes an Error on the Sales Tax

Author Northcutt Suspicious of Mysterious 2-Page Substitution

BILL IS RECALLED

House Refuses to Speak on Proposed Federal Court Reform

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—An error by the engrossing clerk halted Wednesday the house's consideration of the Northcutt 2 per cent sales tax bill and sent the measure to the senate for correction.

A special senate committee discovered the error and ordered the bill re-engrossed properly, after which it was sent back to the house.

Senator Northcutt of Salem, author of the bill, dropped a bombshell in the morning session of both houses when he charged on the senate floor that "some scoundrel has substituted two pages which completely destroy the purpose of the bill."

The senate immediately recalled the measure from the house, which was preparing to resume debate on a number of proposed amendments to it.

Sidetrack Court Bill

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Arkansas House of Representatives declined Wednesday to act immediately on a resolution seeking to place the membership on record as favoring President Roosevelt's proposed court reorganization program.

The house voted 49 to 20 to send the resolution to the committee on memorials for hearing.

Emotion From Sales Tax

LITTLE ROCK.—The House of Representatives indicated Tuesday that it did not approve the administration sales tax bill as passed by the senate, by adopting six of the 11 amendments proposed. There were 24 other proposed amendments on the clerk's desk when the house adjourned at 5:45 p. m. until 9:30 a. m. Wednesday.

The amendments were placed on the bill despite warnings of several members that they would defeat its purpose. It was said that the governor's program anticipated a revenue of approximately 6,000,000 from the measure, introduced by Northcutt of Fulton, and that any amendments adopted would serve to disrupt the program.

Practically the entire day was taken up debating changes proposed in the measure.

Amendments Adopted

Amendments adopted were: By Toland of Howard, to exempt agricultural, horticultural, livestock, poultry and dairy products from taxation as long as they remain in possession of the producer.

By Toland, to authorize the commissioner of revenue to inaugurate the token system.

By Burkle of Arkansas county, to provide that the act automatically become null and void July 1, 1938.

By Blair of Logan, to require merchants to pay the sales tax on merchandise taken from the store for home use.

By Chriss of Pulaski and Harris of Jefferson, to exempt milk from provisions of the act.

By Thomas of Prairie, to apply the tax to the difference between the allowance on a used automobile and the price of a new car on a trade.

Amendments rejected were: By Warfield of Chicot, to authorize utilities to discontinue service when a customer arbitrarily refuses to pay the tax.

Foster of Lonoke county, to exempt feed used for farm purposes.

Buerkle of Arkansas county, to exempt motor fuel and electrical energy used for farm purposes.

By Toland, to exempt medicine prescribed by doctors.

Thompson of Independence, to change allocation of revenue to 40 per cent for common schools, 40 per cent to old age pensions, 10 per cent to charitable institutions, six per cent to homestead exemptions and four per cent to free textbooks.

The bill as passed by the Senate would allocate the revenue as follows: 50 per cent to common schools, 25 per cent to old age pensions, 10 per cent to charitable institutions, Eight per cent to replace moneys lost through homestead exemptions, and seven per cent for free textbooks.

The bill, made a special order for Tuesday, is expected to be called up for further consideration Wednesday. Four amendments were placed on it by the Senate, but all were said to have been approved by the administration. However, none of those adopted by the house was sanctioned by the governor, administration leaders said.

Every proposed amendment was debated at length. Several attempts were made to limit debate, but without success.

The Family Doctor

Diphtheria Particularly Dangerous to Children Under 5 Years of Age

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

It is not safe to gamble on the possibility that a throat infection which looks like diphtheria, but something else. If your child complains of sickness, particularly of a sore throat, and if there is any possibility that he has been exposed to diphtheria, a culture should be taken and the material examined immediately.

A doctor should be summoned instantly if your child appears to have swelling of the neck or any croupy condition with hoarseness. Eighty-five per cent of the deaths from diphtheria occur in youngsters under 5 years of age. In such children, particularly, therefore, recognition of diphtheria at the earliest possible moment is important.

In preventing diphtheria, the most significant factors are the use of the Schick test and of diphtheria toxoid. During the first six months of life, many children are protected from diphtheria by material coming to them through their mothers.

The Schick test, which shows whether a child has this protection in its body, is merely a method in which a very small amount of diphtheria toxin is injected under the skin. People who have resistance to disease will have a negative Schick test; those who have not, a positive one.

When a person does not possess sufficient resistance to the disease, he may be given this resistance artificially by injection with a substance called toxoid.

Toxoid is a diphtheria poison made innocuous, or detoxified, by the addition of formaldehyde. There are both one-dose and two-dose treatments. The majority of physicians prefer to give the two injections three weeks apart.

Injection of this toxoid stimulates formation in the child's body of a substance capable of overcoming the diphtheria poison.

Use of the Schick test in thousands of cases has shown that about 8 per cent of young babies are without resistance to diphtheria, from 20 to 40 per cent of babies are without resistance at 1 year of age, and about 65 per cent are without sufficient resistance at the age of 5.

Before the invention of toxoid, it was customary to ward off diphtheria by giving those who had been exposed a dose of the antitoxin. This type of injection would prevent the disease for only a very short time. Then a mixture of toxin and antitoxin was given. Since this involved the injection of horse serum, however, toxoid has gradually replaced both antitoxin and toxin-antitoxin in the prevention of diphtheria.

In the treatment of the disease, the antitoxin, of course, is most valuable.

Romance? Nil!

Not long ago Eleanor Powell gave a selection of Hollywood's "five best tap dancers." It sounded harmless because there are only five topnotchers anyhow. But irate letters from fans still are pouring into the studio demanding to know why she didn't pick some other hoofers.

The treatment accorded them by some of the hysterical movie magazines has taught several of the stars that they'd better not mention romance.

None of the actor-philanthropists will say a word about their charities. Jane Wyatt does an imitation of a claim the minute anyone mentions her impressive social background. She believes it would be definitely harmful to her popularity if fans began thinking of her as a "society actress." Ditto Rosalind Russell.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Boarding CARLTON ROCKSAY, AGE 34, GOLDEN GULL, on Miami, to investigate the disappearance of BOLITHO BLANE, British financier and Rock-say's chief competitor in world soap trade. Detective Officer KETTERING finds strange marks on Blane's cabin carpet and blood on the curtain.

Kettering examines all passengers including NICHOLAS STUBBART, Blane's secretary; Rock-say's wife and daughter ERIKA; LADY WELTER, ROCKSAY'S and MRS. JOCELYN, Lady Welter's daughter and son-in-law; the BISHOP OF BUDE; COUNT LUGI POSODINI and INOSUKE HAYASHI.

Kettering finds in preliminary interviews that ROCKSAY sought a merger with Blane to save their companies; that Lady Welter is heavily interested; that Hayashi, Japanese agent, sought desperately to sell either Blane or Rock-say, a huge soap monopoly; that Posodini is an ex-convict; that Blane was involved in an unsavory army scandal; that Rock-say's former partner died mysteriously in his office.

Later, Stubbart details to Kettering his life as secretary to Blane.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

THIS morning, immediately I received the outside information upon various members of the party I proceeded to a new analysis of the situation and composed a fresh draft of possible motives.

POSSIBLE MOTIVES. 9-1-37

MRS. JOCELYN: Nil, as far as known at the moment.

COUNT POSODINI: Nil, as far as known at the moment, but the count is now identified as the ex-convict "Slick" Daniels, as there must be some special reason for Reginald Jocelyn having asked him on board, when he was quite unknown to any other member of the party.

MR. ROCKSAY: Strong motive to do away with Blane as pointed out in previous analysis. This becoming even stronger on confirmation of the precarious situation of his companies.

THE BISHOP OF BUDE: Nil, as far as known at the moment, but his possession of a letter from Blane mailed from New York on the 5th shows his acquaintance with the murdered man to be far stronger than he would have us believe in his first statement. This letter lays such stress upon the friendship existing between the two that it reads to me much more like a threat by Blane that, whatever might occur on the yacht, the Bishop had better keep his mouth shut. This is supported by the suggestion in the cable from Scotland Yard that there was some unpleasant scandal in which the Bishop was involved in 1917.

LADY WELTER: Motive in her case, which was weak in our first analysis, is considerably strengthened by the cable from Scotland Yard, in which it appears that she has been expending a portion of her fortune for numerous years in supporting a non-commercial group of papers. Further, that she lost a considerable portion of her capital in the Hatry crash, and is now principally dependent upon her holdings in the Rock-say company.

MR. HAYASHI: Nil, as far as is known at the moment, but the fact that he wrote to Blane, asking for an appointment, brings him much more strongly under suspicion. If it can be proved that he visited Blane's cabin between 7:45 and 8:15, when he appeared in the lounge, it will look very much as though he is our man.

MR. JOCELYN: As dependent of Lady Welter his motive is considerably strengthened by the facts about her financial situation which have now emerged. From the report of his activities previous to his marriage with Lady Welter's daughter it is obvious that he is something of an adventurer and, since he was frequently written, probably unscrupulous where money is concerned. Moreover, he is responsible for having introduced into the party a known criminal, "Slick" Daniels, alias Count Posodini.

MISS ROCKSAY: Nil, as far as is known at the moment.

I then proceeded to re-examine the whole party.

DETECTIVE OFFICER NEAME'S SHORTHAND NOTES OF DETECTIVE OFFICER KETTERING'S SECOND EXAMINATION OF COUNT POSODINI.

K. Good morning, Count.

P. Hallo, hallo, still busy Mr. Sherlock Holmes?

K. Very busy indeed, Mr. Daniels.

P. Well, now, just fancy your people being as quick off the mark as that.

K. You don't deny it?

P. What's the use, friend? I kept up the little bluff yesterday because I had half a hope that you might lay your hands on the man who gave Blane his right-away. Then I could have gone back to business without any sort of trouble from you folk at all, but it was only half a hope and I knew that if you didn't get your man you'd pick it up that the Count stuff was all honey by today.

K. Well, that's frank, anyhow. Now, what do you know?

P. I don't know nothing. I swear by Almighty God.

K. Cut it, Slick, cut it. You're in a spot. You know that, don't you?

P. So that's the line, is it—trying to frame me, are you?

K. Not a bit of it. I want your help, that's all.

P. Oh, yeah! That's what all you guys say, and once I start to shoot my mouth I'll say something I didn't mean, then you'll be on me and I'll be for the hot spot before I know what's happened. No sir. I'm not talking.

K. Now, look here, Slick, I'm not trying to frame you—honest. But you're in a jam, boy—in a jam. You're an old-timer, mixing in with this swell crowd. Why? You didn't come here for sun-bathing and big-game fishing, and you didn't come here to invest a million dollars in soap. What's more, you've got a gun down in your cabin.

P. There you are—what did I say? Just because I'm known to the bulls you're jumping to it that I bumped off Blane. What's a gun, anyhow? Your bunch have never known me to use one, have they?

K. No, that's the whole point. Murder is not your racket, Slick, so you've got nothing to be frightened of if you'll come clean, but if you don't, Slick, you're in a spot; you're in a spot, my boy.

P. You've said a mouthful. If you can't get the right guy you'll get the wrong, rather than fall down on your job, and having me on board makes it easy money.

K. You know how things pan out, Slick. It's a bad break, but that's just how it might be.

P. Will you play ball with me, if I play ball with you?

K. Sure I will, Slick. I know you didn't do it. You're a con man and a sharp. This isn't your racket, but you've got to tell me just what you know.

P. O. K. Shoot the questions.

K. You were in the lounge until 7:45 the night before last with Mrs. Jocelyn, then, according to your previous statement, you both went below together. You turned up in the lounge again at 25 after 8. It doesn't take a man 40 minutes to change his clothes and I want to know just what you did during that time.

P. Well, it was this way, chief: that dame's sweet on me.

K. Which dame?

P. Why, Mrs. Jocelyn. She's a goodlooker, too, but I make it a rule never to mix business with pleasure.

K. So you were here on business?

P. There you are, what did I say? You'll have me on the hot spot before I know which way I'm walking. You bulls are all the same.

Panorama of Events Since Victoria's Time

The world has changed prodigiously since Victoria became queen of England, in 1837. The change is still going on, and Philip Guedalla has a look at it in "The Hundred Years" (Doubleday, Doran; $3). He offers a series of panoramic views designed to show if not where we are going, at least how we are getting there.

His first panorama is that of 1837. England, just awakening to industrialization, crowns a girl as queen; middle Europe drowns under Metternich's freezing of the status quo; Russia remains medieval and murky; France puts up with her Bourbons; America fights off a devastating panic.

Then he moves the camera up to 1848. There is revolution across Europe, with France proclaiming a republic; the serfs are freed in Russia; England shudders before a rebellion which misses fire; America conquers Mexico and goes to the Pacific.

Next comes 1861. America begins a terrible civil war, to test whether "government of the people, by the people, and for the people" is to endure; France sets up an empire; England waxes rich; the German states begin to tug away from Austrian leadership toward that of Prussia.

As so Mr. Guedalla comes down toward the present, selecting his salient points, surveying the world from then, and moving on to the next. He writes with dry irony which frequently is enormously effective; especially good are his chapters on the bombardment of Fort Sumter and Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee.

In the main, his book is much better at the beginning than toward the end. His lofty detachment makes a way of deserting him, as he comes down to only with the advance understanding that the name of Josef Von Sternberg isn't to be mentioned. Franchot Tone is the despair of all Hollywood correspondents. He'll be quoted only on the subject of acting.

Lewisville Again Wins Over Bobcats

All-Stars Are Pushed to Limit to Win Game, 34 to 33

The Lewisville All-Stars won over the Hope High School basketball team in a hard-fought contest Tuesday night at Lewisville. The score was 34 to 33.

The game was the closest and hardest fought game played between the two teams.

Tuesday night's game marked the fourth meeting of the teams this season and the third time that the Lewisville All-Stars have emerged winners.

McClendon and Wilson were outstanding for the Lewisville team. Reese and Ramsey turned in a good game for Hope.

Oglesby Cage Title to Mrs. Brigg's Room

The championship basketball title of Oglesby school was won Monday afternoon by the Mrs. Brigg's room, that team defeating the 6-X team, 18 to 14.

A basketball game between a women's team of Columbus and the Hope P.T.A. team will be played in the Hope High School gymnasium next Tuesday night, February 16.

These games are sponsored by the WPA women's recreational division.

Porker Coach to Try Experiment

Will Shift Team Around in Games With Texas A. and M.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—His University of Arkansas Razorbacks mirrored down in the Southwest Conference basketball title race with four defeats, Coach Glen Rose prepared Tuesday to experiment in this week's games with Texas A. and M.

His present plans call for shifting Jack Robbins from guard to a forward position and transfer of big Ray Hamilton from center to guard. Harold Brady, a transfer, may see service in all positions in an effort to determine which one is best suited for.

Neil Martin, a sophomore who has shone up well during his brief relief roles, probably will see plenty of action in remaining games.

The Aggies will need a double win in Friday and Saturday night games here to stay on the heels of the flying Southern Methodist Mustangs in the conference race.

date; some of his final chapters could have been written by almost any capable newspaper rewrite man. But taken as a whole, "The Hundred Years" is very much worth the reading.

Questions That Some Folks Ask About C. BENEFIT FOR MAIL-NUTRITION

Thousands of women testify that it has helped them to overcome malnutrition and to ease many functional pains of menstruation. "What is meant by 'helping to overcome malnutrition'?" Cardui contains extracts of letters which are classed among the "bitters" in medicine because they are known to increase the flow of digestive juices to improve digestion and there is a craving for sufficient food for the body's needs, and by their action more energy (or strength) is obtained from the food eaten. The pills, of course, brings the additional strength, but Cardui serves as a means to this end by its good influence on the digestive system.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go! The liver should pour out its bile and liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just sits there in the bowels. Gas builds up, your stomach, you get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sick, weak and the world looks murky. Laxatives are only makeshifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes three good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Healthy, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Your Children

Child Likely to Neglect Promises

Teach children not to give their word lightly, or if they do, to go through fire and water to keep that word.

This is the real test of character. And it has to be ingrained early in order to stick.

Once in a while, something happens to change circumstances. This automatically lets the promiser out of his contract. But when nothing intervenes except his own convenience or his own feelings, then he must be made to see that honor is not built of such flimsy stuff.

There are two kinds of promises. One is extorted either by misrepresentation or threat. In the case of a promise made by any such means, and children are being put in this false position constantly, there is little dishonor in a breakdown. This is why it is imperative for parents and teachers to show the child very clearly what his given word means. It at least gives him an option. He can withhold his promise in the first place.

Threat to Character

But the other kind, a mutual agreement with a chum or with an adult to do something at a given time or place, or to give something or refrain from something, is a bond and a contract.

If Tommy promises George to go to the library with him after school, and then is coaxed off by Herbert to get his skates instead, it sounds like a little and unimportant thing.

But it is the most dangerous and insidious crack in the ice of character and sportsmanship. A dozen such occurrences will still conscience entirely. The first time or two, Thomas may not care for George and explain and say he couldn't help it very well. He makes a gesture, at least, to ease his guilt.

Conscientiousness Destroyed

Gradually, and especially if the injured parties are decent enough to take it good-naturedly and not give him a black eye, takes acquiescence for a certain right of his. Conscience ceases to register at all. And Tommy begins to make easy promises, more easily broken, because it does two things that are very nice for him. It holds the other fellow, for one thing, and allows him at the last minute to make a choice of several things. He selects the one most suited to his mood at the moment.

I don't believe much in the extracted promise, except in rare occasions when it has its place. But every child is pledging his word to others on his own responsibility day after day. Sure, he'll go. Yes, he will bring the pup over. Yes, Hank can have his sled for an hour.

He must be made to see that what his tongue says, his arms and legs and body must carry out. Later, in a complicated life, pledges become complex. They concern written and unwritten law, behind which must stand conscience or nothing. Conscience is habit, and habit alone.

Not "Chousey"

One of the most futile hums in Hollywood is to approach anybody of prominence for a selection of the "best actor" or the "prettiest actress" or anything like that. Ask Adrian, the designer, for a list of best-dressed women and he'll shudder and say, "No, thanks, I'd rather keep my friends."

Religion, Politics Taboo in Interviews With Stars

HOLLYWOOD—The flicker celebrities lead a goldfish existence most of the time, and so guard jealously the little privacy they can enjoy. In the same way, although they're the most interviewed people in the world, there are certain topics that they decline firmly, and not always gently, to discuss.

There are only two taboos universally observed by all screen players. The subjects are politics and religion, and the reasons are obvious. A good many of the stars have pretty Tom Knobel of St. Charles, Mo., whose late parents date back to the founding of Hope, the father being the engineer piloting the building of Hope's railroads, and assisted in making the first plat of the town of Hope, spent Tuesday in the city, seeing old friends and relatives. He was accompanied home by his sister, Miss Louise Knobel, who is recovering from a recent illness occasioned by gas fumes from an over-heated water tank.

The Althean class of the First Baptist Sunday school, Mrs. S. D. Cook teacher, held its regular monthly business and social meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Sevea Gibson on South Grady street, with Mrs. M. S. Bates, Mrs. Sterling and Mrs. Cook as associate hostesses. The Valentine motif was observed in the decorations, with lovely juncos and mandarin in graceful arrangement. The games still further stressed the Valentine motif. Twenty members were present. The hostesses served tempting salad with cookies and hot tea.

The regular monthly meeting of the Christian Endeavor of the First Presbyterian church was held last Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Marjorie Dildy, East Avenue B. Following an interesting program, there was an election of officers as follows: President, Miss Janet Lenly; vice president, Miss Mary Ann Lile; secretary, Miss Sara Ann Holland; leader, Mrs. Thos. AT THE THEATERS

At the Saenger

Against a background of international intrigue, with Scotland Yard detectives close on their heels in a mad dash over the map of Europe, Joan Crawford and Clark Gable appear in their new starring picture, "Love on the Run," showing today, Thursday and Friday at the Saenger.

Prominent in supporting roles are Franchot TONE, Reginald OWEN, Mona Barrie, Ivan LEBEL, Charles JUDOLS and William DEMAREST.

Gable portrays a newspaperman and Miss Crawford an American heiress. She runs away from the altar and a pompous nobleman into Gable and trouble. "Love" has the part of a newspaper buddy of Gable's.

Owen becomes a deep-dyed villain in the action-filled comedy melodrama as Baron Spanderman, head of an international spy ring. Gable and Miss Crawford are pursued in airplanes, trains and automobiles only to uncover bigger game in the Baron and his spy intrigue.

A Fox News and a new "Pluto" color cartoon complete the program.

Mark Of Poet's Disdain

ON one of the stamps in the set issued by Spain in 1935, in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the death of Lope de Vega, a great Spanish poet and dramatist, is a dead beetle lying beside a rose bush. This is the mark that Vega had adopted in disdain of those who dared to criticize his works. He had made this the frontispiece of one of his plays, and had inscribed above the design the Latin words that mean, "It (the rose) kills by its very fragrance."

Beetles have been known to die from the odor of roses, and Vega's use of this metaphor was a brilliant way of expressing his disdain for his critics. He had good reason to feel superior to them, for he was a prolific writer and was considered as great in the Spanish theater as his contemporary poet, Shakespeare, was in the English. He wrote more than 1500 plays and some 21 volumes of poetry, yet he had time to serve twice in the Spanish navy and to embroil himself in many ardent affairs with women. He became a monk in his later years, and died in 1615, at the age of 73.

Gals' Ship Models
CHICAGO.—A 47—An old coffee can, some discarded tools, thread, nails and quantities of wood became war craft so precise in detail, under the skillful hands of Frank Stone, 22, that they are used for instruction work by naval reserve officers.

Frank is lauded by naval authorities as their whittler par excellence besides being a seaman, first class, in his fourth year of training with the 24th division, U. S. naval reserves.

He has a destroyer, the U. S. S. Texas and the U. S. S. Indianapolis on display at division headquarters where they are being used in teaching reservists what is proper aboard real battle craft.

The models are built on a scale of one-sixteenth inch to the foot.

"Made in America" on Fine China Now Is Big Possibility

Knoxville, Tenn. — (NEA) — Within the shadow of Norris Dam a small group of men have transformed gray Tennessee Valley clay into light, white, egg-shell porcelain dinnerware that is acclaimed as fine as any in the world—the first time that porcelain has been made from clay found in this country.

Up to now, either the clay or the fragile-looking eggshell porcelain teapots made from Tennessee Valley clay are among the first all-American products of their kind, made possible through the research of Robert E. Gould at Norris Dam. Those below are two pots from the same mold. That at right is the larger because it has not yet been fired. College Youth Is Victim Mismatch

Death of Virginia Cadet Shows Need of Boxing Reform

By RICHARD MCCANN
NEA Service Sports Writer

Billy Eastman, his youthful pink cheeks speckled with blood and splintered with angry red welts, stumbled down out of the ring and spluttered protests to his coach.

"Why'd you stop it? Why'd you stop it? I could've gotten up."

Billy slouched down disgustedly into his seat on the bench with the rest of the Virginia Military Institute boxing squad to watch his fellow student-fighters carry on against the University of Maryland team.

Nobody knew it, but he was dying then.

During the course of the next bout, Billy, who said he could've gotten up again, fell limp against the shoulder of a teammate and his blood-curst lips turned blue.

He died a few hours later.

It is to be hoped that his death in Lexington, Va., may prove to be another shot heard around the world—like the one that started a revolution at the other Lexington. And perhaps he will not have died in vain, and maybe he has been a martyr to a cause and will bring about a reform, if not complete abolition, of college boxing.

Unequal Matches

Cadet William Judson Eastman, 18-year-old sophomore and scion of a good Washington, D. C. family, was the victim of collegiate mismatching. His death was accidental, to be sure, but it could have been avoided, should have been avoided.

Young Eastman wasn't matched with the murderous-punching Mike Lombardo, a tried and true veteran, because it appeared to be a good match. Young Eastman was matched with Lombardo only because his V. M. I. team was matched with Maryland and because he and Lombardo each weighed 155 pounds.

Just to show you how silly—or is that quite the proper word to use when a boy has died?—the whole set-up is, imagine a fight manager saying to another fight manager, "Say, Joe, I've got eight fighters, each in a different weight; how about matching 'em with your eight fighters, huh?"

No thought whatever as to whether Joe's featherweight, for instance, might be the world champion and the other featherweight might be just making his debut.

Would any boxing commission tolerate such mismatching?

Most emphatically not. Opponents in the professional ring must be comparatively equal in ability.

On the other hand—and it looks like blood on this hand—college boxers are seldom equally matched. Teams may be, but not the individuals. And though the score of a team may be 4-4, each of the bouts may have been a pitiful mismatch, like the Eastman-Lombardo bout.

Poorly Conditioned

But even the boys are equally matched in ability and experience it does not naturally follow that they should be in there catching heavy punches on the head and in the stomach. Many of them, you see, aren't properly conditioned for such a pastime.

You may be right off the football team and rugged enough to play four full quarters in a tough game, but that doesn't mean that you can take a lusty right hand in the stomach or stand the was out of the picture. Metal would not stand up under such heat. Experiments were made with other materials. Finally carborundum bars were decided on. They worked.

See Waste Reduced

Mr. Gould and his electrical experts want to find a material that will last even longer than carborundum. They think that they have it. It is graphite in a vacuum inside a carborundum bar. One furnace with such resistors has been kept at 2600 degrees since last April and the units haven't burned out yet.

A much larger kiln is being built. It will be the only one in the country and a high degree of efficiency is expected of it.

Up to now ceramic plants have fired with oil, gas or coke. Electricity is believed to have several big advantages, provided it can be bought cheaply.

Mr. Henry said electric firing will greatly reduce the waste because the heat can be controlled and is more uniform. Uniform heating is important because if, for instance more heat hits one side of a cup than the other, it will warp or break it.

Floating Cannery

their men are the highest paid marine workers in the world. As for the 1,200 fishermen on the seiners, they have to work only in the dark of the moon. That is the only time the silvery banks of sardines, feeding on microscopic plankton, become visible.

The fishermen ordinarily are sacked aboard the mother ships but the new $500,000 S. S. Polaris merely stores it in the hold, then loads it through a suction pipe into box cars, whence it is distributed in various farm centers.

While the floating factories operate outside the three-mile limit in international waters, the initiative petition would curb them by making the purse seiners amenable to revocable permits from the state fish and game department.

The state federation of labor has entered the fight on the side of the young industry. A resolution adopted at a convention charges that to put the floating plants out of operation merely would leave the waters open for exploitation by the Japanese.

certainly attractive.

Came Without Warning

Details of the historic Roosevelt proposal, while in preparation, were as carefully guarded a secret as was ever preserved in Washington.

The president had been studying the possibilities of enlarging the court for at least a year and was emboldened by the election result to concentrate upon it.

When seven members of the court attended the annual supreme court dinner at the White House Tuesday night preceding the message, they were blissfully unaware of what was coming. But there were at least three or four other dinner guests who knew, and their feelings can only be imagined.

Brandeis, who always stays home on such occasions, may also have known. Roosevelt had been working on the plan earlier in the day.

Key to Decision

It is important to remember that Roosevelt was deeply impressed by the "mandate" of last November and that he regards himself as an elected representative of the masses he feels bound to protect from exploitation by "selfish interests."

Fundamental New Deal philosophy, from both the economic standpoint with its consideration of purchasing power and the political standpoint, calls for a strong labor movement.

Predominant administration opinion views the sitdown strike as a new and relatively successful labor union technique which is no more illegal than the defiance by large corporate employers of the Wagner Labor Act and other New Deal laws.

The Wagner act, which guarantees freedom to organize and bargain collectively on outlaws company unions, is a key to Roosevelt's decision to act at this time. The relative certainty that the supreme court would try to kill the act, was taken into consideration.

Against Judiciary Rule

Roosevelt definitely believes that the opposition to liberal democracy, coted or frightened out of legislative halls, has taken up its stand in the judiciary and should not be tolerated there while constitutional means remain to thwart its usurpation of legislative or executive power.

He wants to assure the people who elected him, including labor, that neither lower courts nor higher courts will be allowed to thwart their will if he can help it.

In other words the fight between Roosevelt and Wall Street, which characterized the election campaign and which many thought was dissolving into an "era of good feeling," is still on in a big way.

Welcome Opposition

At one point it was likely that Roosevelt would propose both his present recommendations and a constitutional amendment at the same time. But belief grew that enough opposition and delay would be encountered in state legislatures to make ratification extremely hazardous.

Administration officials say the opposition will come for the most part only from individuals and groups whom it considers to have been repudiated at the polls.

The more arguments they make against the plan, they think, the more popular it will become. Thus they greeted Herbert Hoover's denunciation of it with a whoop, and waited in eager anticipation for a helpful attack by Al Smith.

Some liberals have grave doubts that Roosevelt's program is the right plan, and the opposition has yet to turn its lines. This dispatch attempts only to explain how it happened, and not to criticize or forecast. Discounting a certain amount of Roosevelt optimism, however, the program seems very likely to become the law of the land.

TCU Football Team Wants to Be Sure

FORT WORTH, Texas.—(P)—It isn't exactly superstition, but it is a Texas Christian grid captain was Lester Brumelow, guard, and his number was 44. The Christians won the Southwest conference title.

In 1932, the Frog captain was all-America Johnny Vaughn, guard, and his number was 44. The Frogs won the conference championship.

In 1937 the Frogs will have Mason Mayo for captain. He is a guard and his number is 44.

An habitual celebrant crept stealthily into his house one night, despite his caution, fell and broke the empty he was carrying in his hip pocket. He was sufficiently lucid to realize that first aid should be applied to the cuts which resulted, and accordingly backed up to a mirror and applied a generous dressing of adhesive tape.

As his wife showed no signs of having been awakened, he was no little astonished when she roused him next morning with, "So you are home drunk again last night!"

"Why, my dear, what in the world gave you that idea?"

"If you were sober, will you please explain how the adhesive tape got all over the mirror?"

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical, only twenty-five cents for the full package, ten cents for the package. (Adv.)
